New challenges for urban mobility

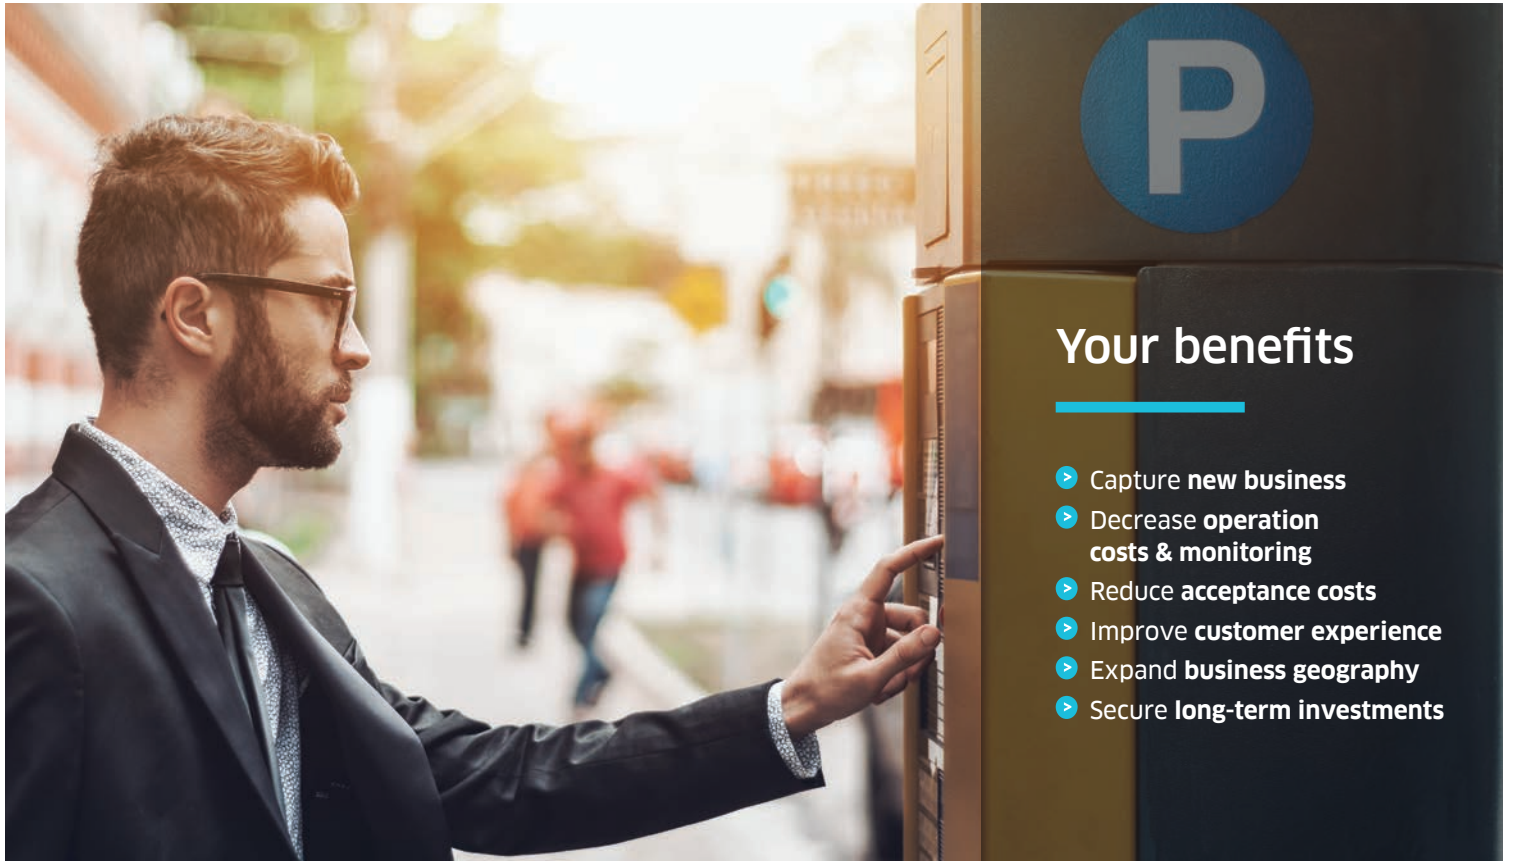

The parking industry is evolving rapidly to adapt to the new concept of smart city. More than just places to park, off-street and on-street car parks contribute to improve urban mobility, by providing additional services such as EV charging, scooter and bike rental, connections with public transport...

In that context, payment is a key component to simplify the customer journeys and transform the parking users' experience. The goal is to make sure customers find their preferred payment methods, from bank and private cards to mobile payment, for a smooth and seamless city trip.
