The relevant dates and RP757c support commitments are detailed below.

1_Rationale

Payment devices (hardware) and POS applications (software) are evolving technologies. They follow a natural product life cycle. Payment hardware is primarily governed by the Payment Card Industry Security Standards Council's (PCI SSC) regulatory compliance requirements, in addition to market activity and market demand.

In this specific case, the main drivers for announcing this EOL of RP757c are:

- Availability of more advanced product in terms of feature set and capabilities.
- Expiration dates for several certificates preventing new E2E certifications & coming expiration date for PCI PTS preventing further sales from ingenico.

After the expiration date, Ingenico is unable to sell or ship any new products to customers. However, Ingenico may continue to provide SDK software updates as required.
